

Faculty of Engineering and Built Environment

Master of Property

Program Code: 11522

Graduate Profile

Graduates of a Master of Property program will be able to demonstrate the following attributes:

1. Graduates will exhibit a clear understanding of both the theory and practice of property portfolio management and property development management;
2. Graduates will be aware of the social, economic and environmental factors surrounding the property asset class, the concept and role of property as both physical and financial asset in the property;
3. Graduates will be familiar with management and analytical techniques relevant to the property asset class together with the various mega-processes and key stakeholders;
4. Graduates will be able to conduct appropriate research into relevant aspects of the property industry.
5. Graduates will be able to practice professional valuation in the property industry.