

The UNIVERSITY of NEWCASTLE

GRADUATION 2025
FRIDAY 18 JULY

OCCASIONAL SPEAKER

Friday 18 July 2025 | 10am Ceremony

Lord Mayor Dr Ross Kerridge

Dr Ross Kerridge became the 15th Lord Mayor of Newcastle in October 2024.

Ross was born and bred in Newcastle. Both his parents were active citizens who strongly believed that everyone had an obligation to improve our community. Ross shares these values.

He attended Newcastle Boys High School and after graduating worked at the BHP steelworks as a labourer, as did many of his school mates.

Ross went on to study medicine at Sydney University and after initially working in General Practice and Indigenous Health in Central Australia, he specialised as an Anaesthetist, training in Sydney, London and Canada.

Prior to becoming Lord Mayor, Ross worked for many years as a Senior Specialist Anaesthetist at the John Hunter Hospital. He teaches medical students as an Associate Professor at the University of Newcastle and is involved in the Hunter Medical Research Institute (HMRI).

During his medical career, Ross was involved in a number of changes to improve safety, efficiency and quality of care in hospitals and health care. He was a strong advocate for and a recognised leader in the development of Perioperative Medicine across the globe.

Away from medicine, community involvement has always been a large part of Ross' life. He believes communities are at their best when there is broad respect and tolerance of our differences, where everyone contributes as actively as they can, and where everyone is valued as a member of the community.

Ross and his wife Marion have two children and recently became grandparents.

OCCASIONAL SPEAKER

Friday 18 July 2025 | 2.30pm Ceremony

Professor Frances Kay

Professor Frances Kay is the current Institute Director and CEO of the Hunter Medical Research Institute, where she is charged with supporting the thriving and innovative health and medical research ecosystem across the University of Newcastle, the Hunter New England Local Health District, and the community of Newcastle and the Hunter New England region.

Frances is a registered psychologist and brings with her 25 years of experience as an HMRI researcher in mental health. Frances' research program has been instrumental in demonstrating the transformative impact of digital technologies in bringing integrated treatments to the point of care for people with comorbidity.

Prior to her research program, there were no effective interventions for comorbid mental and substance use disorders that were shown to improve outcomes. Since that time, Frances has built an innovative program of research that has attracted international collaborators across 5 disciplines and earned >$30M in funded research projects.

Professor Kay also has over 10 years research leadership experience, most recently holding the positions of interim Pro-Vice Chancellor, Research and Innovation and Head of School of Medicine and Public Health at the University of Newcastle. She is also the newly appointed Chair of the National Health and Medical Research Council (NHMRC) Women in Health Science Committee and is a member of the NHMRC Research Committee.

Frances is passionate about working towards a future where everybody who has a worry about their health – or that of their family members or friends – has hope. As Institute Director of HMRI, she is now in a position to work with all of the HMRI community to support researchers, clinicians, and the community to realise this future.

OCCASIONAL SPEAKER

Professor Amanda Wilson

Professor Amanda Wilson is the new Head of School and Dean of Nursing and Midwifery at the University of Newcastle where she is responsible for strategic leadership, curriculum innovation and the delivery of high-quality, practice-ready graduates for Australia's health workforce.

Professor Wilson's connection to Newcastle is both personal and professional. She completed her initial registered-nurse training here in the 1980s and was awarded her PhD by the University in 2010. This local grounding informs her commitment to accessible, community-focused health education and to nurturing the next generation of clinicians and scholars.

A widely cited researcher in chronic disease, health literacy and the educational applications of artificial intelligence, Professor Wilson has authored more than 130 peer-reviewed publications and served as a Cochrane reviewer for over two decades. Her current projects examine contemporary decision-making models and the integration of digital tools into clinical training.

Beyond her research, Professor Wilson contributes to national standards of nursing education through her work with the Australian Nursing and Midwifery Accreditation Council and consults regularly with health-service partners across New South Wales.

A proud Newcastle graduate, Professor Wilson embodies the University's values of excellence, engagement and equity. Her career demonstrates how local beginnings can foster international influence, and her stewardship continues to shape a School recognised for innovation, scholarly rigour and community impact.

ALUMNI STORIES

Dr Guy Cameron

Dr Guy Cameron, a proud Wailwan man, is an early-career researcher dedicated to improving health outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities. His journey began with a Bachelor of Biomedical Science at the University of Newcastle, leading to a PhD in immunology and microbiology and a postdoctoral research role with the university and the Hunter Medical Research Institute (HMRI) - Australia's largest regional medical research institute.

Now part of HMRI's Aboriginal ear health team, Dr Cameron's research - funded by NSW Health - focuses on bacteria linked to middle ear infections (otitis media), a major issue among Aboriginal children.

He believes he is starting to see a major shift in the way research is being done, backed by a community-centred and culturally safe approach, and a strong commitment to Aboriginal health.

"There's growing recognition of the need to involve stakeholders and embed lived experience in research," he says. "It's about ensuring outcomes reflect community needs. While there's still work to do, I'm proud to be part of this shift."

Alongside his research, Guy is completing his medical degree through the Joint Medical Program in the Hunter New England Local Health District. "It's amazing to see therapies developed by researchers - including those at HMRI - transforming lives. Speaking to patients using these treatments really brings that impact home."

Thank you to Hunter Medical Research Institute for supporting our graduates and the Graduation Ceremonies today.
