ACHRC

Australasian Consortium of Humanities Research Centres

The Australasian Consortium of Humanities Research Centres (ACHRC) is a network for groups engaged in Humanities-based research. Our aim is to connect Humanities researchers and centres, both within the Australasian region and internationally, and to promote relationships with cultural institutions and sector representative bodies in the wider community. We provide a virtual and physical hub for information about research opportunities and events, and seek to strengthen the public profile of research in the Humanities.

Conference Organising Committee

Dr Tully Barnett (UFlinders)

Assoc. Prof. Nancy Cushing (University of Newcastle)

Dr Rachel Franks (State Library NSW)

Dr Julie McIntyre (University of Newcastle)

Dr Jane Mummery (Federation Uni)

This event has been made possible by the generous support of: The School of Humanities and Social Science, UON; The Centre for 21st Century Humanities; The Australasian Consortium of Humanities Research Centres; Newcastle Museum; Newcastle Region Library. Our thanks to UON postgraduate student Johanna Trainor for the photograph of Garside Gardens, King Edward Park, Newcastle
