Considerations	• Look for high-quality, large-size images that won't pixelate when enlarged for PowerPoint slides or videos. Vectors are always a good choice.
	• Where possible, try for landscape-format images for PowerPoints rather than portrait, as these tend to re-size better for full-slide use.
	• Look for images that won't distract from your message (e.g. too 'busy', subjects that are obviously models, etc.).
	• Double-check images for anything that might be culturally insensitive, such as smoking, blood, amount of clothing on subjects, etc.
