

University of Newcastle
Bachelor of Arts (Honours) (10214)
Transition Arrangements

The following transition arrangements apply to students who commenced their program in 2005-2011 (inclusive) and are currently studying the 120 unit Australian Psychology Accreditation Council (APAC) approved sequence of psychology courses will be able to complete the accredited fourth year courses within this program, but must complete both the Bachelor of Arts program and Bachelor of Arts (Honours) program within a limited number of years. Students should seek independent advice from the School of Psychology and their Program Advisor, regarding accreditation eligibility. An APAC accredited Psychology

Students who commenced honours in Psychology part-time in 2014 will finish their honours under the program structure in which they enrolled in 2014. All students undertaking Psychology Honours in 2015 and beyond will commence under the new program structure.

From 2012, the Chinese major is only available to pre-2012 continuing Chinese major students within the Bachelor of Arts (Honours) and Bachelor of Arts programs. Eligible students wishing to commence studies in Chinese in this program will need to contact the Program Convenor for further information.

The Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Arts (Honours) programs were externally reviewed in 2011. As a result, a number of majors have been modified. Some pre-2012 students may enter a newly named or combined major as follows:

- The previously separate Drama major, & Creative Arts major have combined to become the Creative & Performing Arts major
- The previously separate Ancient History major, & Classical Languages major have combined to become the Ancient History & Classical Languages major
- The previously separate English major, & Writing major have combined to become the English & Writing major. The previously separate Politics & Policy major, & International Affairs major have combined to become the Politics & International Relations major
- The previously separate Philosophy major, & Religious Studies major have combined to become the Philosophy & Religion major
- The French major has become the French Studies major
- The Japanese major has become the Japanese Studies major.